Where can I get information and support for breastfeeding?

Breastmilk is the perfect food for your baby and it is all that your baby needs to eat and drink for the first 6 months. However it can take time to learn how to breastfeed. With the right support you can breastfeed your baby.

Your midwife

Your midwife can give you information and support when you are pregnant and up to 6 weeks after your baby is born.

Ask your midwife what you can do to get ready to breastfeed.

Your midwife will visit you at home within 24 hours after you leave the hospital or birthing unit. If you need help before then, or if you are not sure whether your baby is feeding properly at any stage, contact your midwife directly.

Middlemore Hospital

If you have your baby at Middlemore Hospital you may be visited by a Breastfeeding Advocate if you are on the Maternity Ward. The Breastfeeding Advocates work alongside the midwives and nurses to help you get breastfeeding started.

If you have a complex breastfeeding issue, a premature baby or an unwell baby the staff may refer you to a Hospital Lactation Consultant. The Lactation Consultants are breastfeeding specialists who will work alongside your midwife/nurse or doctor.
